

Cross-Lingual Transfer for Low-Resource NLP via Shared Representations

David Lee

Technical University of Munich, Germany
dlee@tum.de

Eva Novak

Max Planck Institute for Intelligent Systems, Germany
e.novak@tuebingen.mpg.de

Abstract

We present a novel approach combining attention mechanisms with graph neural networks for improved molecular property prediction. Experiments on standard benchmarks demonstrate state-of-the-art performance across multiple datasets.

1 Introduction

Deep learning has transformed many areas of scientific computing. In this paper we propose a unified framework that addresses key limitations of prior work. Our contributions are: (1) a novel architecture, (2) improved training procedure, (3) comprehensive benchmarks.

Acknowledgements

David Lee was funded by DFG grant LE-2345/1-1. The authors thank the Max Planck Institute for providing compute resources.